Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Bulletin No; 1 of the Illinois State Museum of Natural History: Springfield, Illinois, February, 1882 For the use of a part of the crinoids described in the following pages, I am indebted to the liberality of Mr. L. A. Cox, of Keokuk, Iowa, who, by his zeal and indefatigable industry as a collector, has brought together one of the finest collections of these beautiful fossils ever obtained from the Keokuk limestone, and he has also been so fortunate as to obtain a large number of specimens from a higher horizon in the Keokuk group, than that from which most of the crinoids peculiar to this formation had previously been obtained. In the winter of 1879, a few finely preserved crinoids were found by Mr. Cox and Mr. Anderson, of Keokuk, in loose pieces of sandy shale at the foot of the bluff about a mile below the city, which had evidently fallen down from above, and an ineffectual attempt was at once made to discover the exact horizon from which the shaly fragments had come....
